

HĀMĀKUA HERO

Start off Asian-American/Pacific Islander (AAPI) heritage month with the story of Japanese immigrant Katsu Goto, and how his experiences with racial injustice in the plantations connect to current events in the U.S. today.

WITH DR. PATSY IWASAKI

Written and illustrated in graphic novel/manga style is the true story of Katsu Goto, a Japanese man who journeyed to Hawai'i seeking a better life as a plantation worker. This book illustrates the racial and cultural problems Japanese immigrants such as Katsu Goto faced in the plantations. It is a powerfully poignant biography about Katsu Goto's life and the injustices he and his countrymen faced in their years of work in Honoka'a from when they arrived in 1885.
